WARSAW CAPTURED BY GERMANS ON WEDNESDAY

Official Statement Issued by War Office in Berlin Says That German Troops Captured the Polish Capital and Broke Through the Forts.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—(By Wireless via Tuckerton, N. J.)—Warsaw has fallen. Official announcement of the capture of the great Russian fortress on the Vistula river was made today by the German war office.

The following official statement announcing Warsaw's fall was issued by the war office:

"Headquarters reports that Warsaw was taken by German troops this morning and that last night Prince Leopold's Bavarian troops broke through the forts on the outer and inner lines where the Russian rear guard were making tenacious resistance.

"The armies of General von Scholtz and General von Gallwitz have advanced toward the road to Lomza, Ostrow and Wyszow with violent engagements taking place.

"Desperate Russian resistance on both sides of the road from Ostrow to Rozan was without success. Twenty-two officers and 4,840 soldiers were taken prisoners and we captured 17 machine guns.

"German cavalry defeated in Courtland and Samitita? Russian cavalry, near Genalze, Birsht and Oniskhty. Yesterday and the day before 2,225 Russians were taken prisoners.

"The situation near and north of Ivanograd is unchanged.

"Our pursuit of the enemy between the upper Vistula and Bug rivers continues.

"German cavalry has entered the region of Vladimir and Volynsk, east of the Bug.

"In the Vosges there was a new engagement near and south of Linagep."

Warsaw fell before the third great Austro-German drive that had for its object the capture of the great Russian stronghold.

The capture of the fortress means that the Germans are now in possession of a great part of the network of strategic railways in Central Poland which the Russians have been using to shift troops and for the transportation of ammunition and food.

The campaign which ended in the capture of the Polish capital began early in May when Field Marshal von Mackensen, with a vast Austro-German army at his back began driving the Russians from the Carpathians.

Surging eastward the Germans and Austrians first took the mountain positions of the Russians and then recaptured Przemyel and Lemberg.

After the Russians had been driven from Galicia Field Marshal von Mackensen began sweeping northward to get in behind Warsaw. In the meantime Field Marshal von Hindenburg to whom the lion's share of the credit goes was waiting in Northern Poland and at the proper moment began driving south.

there and the great base hospitals were situated there.

In addition to the value of Warsaw from a military standpoint the political and moral effect of the victory will be far reaching. Countries now neutral but which are upon the brink of war will pause. Soldiers of the allied armies in all the theaters of war will be disheartened. And on the German side the patriotism will blaze still higher.

It is regarded as significant that the honor of entering the city was given to the Bavarian troops. It was a well earned honor, however. During the recent hard fighting on the Blisze front, the Bavarians were always on the firing line and they stormed trench after trench at the point of the bayonet, pressing back the Russian defenders until they were finally cooped up in the ring of forts guarding the city.

There are more than 30 forts in the great iron band that encircles the city, those upon the western side being the strongest of the circuit. The outer ring is between six and seven miles from the city. The inner ring lies about a mile and a half inside of the outer circle. Chief of the forts are Rakow, Powazki, Szczalowiec, Rakowice, Sluzewice, Gercze, Grochow, Sluzew, Aleksandrow, Bielany, Gack, Jelonki and Odalany.

The citadel lies in a northern suburb and the infantry barracks are in the northern part of the city. Warsaw proper lies on the western bank of the Vistula river. The cavalry barracks lie in a suburb south of the city. The gas works which is in the extreme western end of the town. The palace lies near the banks of the Vistula and to the south of it are the town hall and the cathedral.

There are ten highways leading out of the city toward the west and several railway lines.

It has long been expected that should the Russians be driven from Warsaw they would retire behind the great fortress of Brest Litovsk, about 100 miles to the east.

MORE TROOPS LAND AT PORT AU PRINCE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Port Au Prince, Haiti, Aug. 5.—The United States battleship Connecticut has arrived here and landed 500 men to preserve order and prevent further outbreaks of revolutionary violence.

With the arrival of the Connecticut and the landing of additional American forces, foreigners here breathed a sigh of relief. The force of marines landed from the cruiser Washington was regarded as too small to preserve order, but with 900 armed Americans on duty it is believed that any critical situation can be promptly met.

The Connecticut entered the harbor last night and the task of landing the additional protective forces began at once. The last men came ashore early this morning. The Americans were lodged in the barracks of the capital.

The general belief is that the American occupation will be permanent until a government has been set up and shown its ability to preserve order. There is no indication of the establishment of a stable government at present.

The Haitian congress fears the partitions of General Bobo and dares not vote to put his opponent, General Blot, in power. The political situation thus remains highly critical.

Freshet in the Creek.

The heavy rain fall together with the northeast wind that blew on Wednesday caused a small sized freshet in the Rondout creek that afternoon, the water being exceptionally high for this season of the year. When the steamer Albany came into the creek the current was running so strong that the boat in making her landing sagged heavily against the dock, snapping off three of the heavy piles. The steamer Odell of the Central-Hudson line also had difficulty making her berth in the creek and owing to the strong current it was found impossible to wind the boat around in the creek as usual.

Chris A. Murray as attorney for Marcella Jordan, executrix of the estate of Thomas Jordan, sold at public auction this morning the two story frame dwelling house at No. 332 Hasbrouck avenue. The property was purchased by Chauncey M. Lane for $1,825.

ERIE FLOOD VICTIMS LISTED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 5.—Restoration has begun. The more serious scars graven on the heart of Erie have been revealed by the subsiding of the torrent which tore its way through the city Tuesday night.

The task of crystallizing the charitable sentiment of the city in efforts for relief work is well under way.

Rehabilitation of those made homeless and destitute by the flood is rapidly proceeding. The ineffaceable memory of the human victims of the cloudburst soon will be the sole existent feature of the destruction wrought in one of the city's busiest districts. All whom the city was able to enlist in work of clearing away the debris were barely able to scratch the surface of the mounds of broken timbers and useless wreckage which once had been the homes and the objects which made them homelike.

Found strewn throughout the path of the raging flood were the bodies of twenty men, women and children. Buried under the huge heaps of wreckage or swept on out into the lake perhaps beyond recovery, are thought to be the bodies of about 15 more. Eleven persons, for whom relatives and friends have spent the past 24 hours in vain search, are given up as lost.

With the loss of life hovering around 35, the total property loss and damage confirms early estimates of $5,000,000 and may go to $5,000,000.

Bodies recovered and identified, follows:

John P. Higgins.
Winifred Devitt Higgins.
Marion Higgins, 13 months old.
James Higgins, 14 years old.
Mrs. Emma Osborne, 44 years old.

ELLINVILLE.

Ellenville, Aug. 5.—Master Richard Elting, Jr., entertained a company of relatives and friends at the home of his parents on Main street Monday afternoon in honor of his first birthday. Young and old alike spent a very happy afternoon.

Mrs. John H. Finney and son of Coscob, Conn., have been visiting her parent, Mr. and Mrs. William Carman, on Warren street.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Murray of Brooklyn are guests at the Sheridan home on Canal street.

Ralph Booth from Connecticut is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Booth, Jr., on Park street.

Edward B. Kimble of Ulster Paint Works, is on a business trip to Albany this week.

An important sale was made in Ellenville this week. The lot opposite the Mitchell House on the late Rockwell property, was sold by U. E. Terwilliger, owner, to Marshall & Jansen of Kerhonkson, upon which site at once they are to erect a large concrete building to be used as a garage. The lunch wagon that has had its home on this lot for a few years past, will move to the vacant lot on Canal street, below the Schipper hardware store.

Joseph Hyatt will move his jewelry store from its present quarters in the Austin block to the vacant store opposite in the Carling block, which is being thoroughly renovated for his use. He with his wife will occupy the living apartments over the store.

There was no end of excitement in Ellenville on Tuesday when two arrests followed fast driving and in both cases the fine of $5 settled the affair. Two persons had a very narrow escape from being run down by the above fast driving.

Mrs. Mary Ter Bush of Greenfield returning from a two weeks' visit with Grahamsville relatives, visited Mrs. W. M. Brown in Ellenville this week.

Walter M. Brown of the local book store, is spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. E. D. Montrose, at Briggs street.

Cornelius Cleary and daughters of Brooklyn are guests of Mrs. J. M. Clair on Park street.

IRELAND ENGLAND SCOTLAND
BRITISH WOMEN READY TO LEND THEIR AID.
(Ireland, England and Scotland in the munition workers' pageant in London.)

Recently more than 50,000 women marched through the streets of London demanding that they be allowed to take the places of the men in the munition factories in order to allow the men to go to the front. In order to stir up patriotism many of the women were garbed in costumes representing the British countries and their allies. All carried flags of the various allies which were waved frantically at every opportunity.

The picture shows the young ladies who represented Ireland, England and Scotland in the huge procession.

PREPARING REPLY TO BRITISH NOTES

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Preparing to turn against Great Britain her own arguments, the state department was today compiling a memorandum for President Wilson on the blockade situation. The president and Secretary Lansing will dispatch a stiff rejoinder to the British contentions and will attempt to refute absolutely the British assumption that because there have been increased exports from the United States to Holland and the Scandinavian countries some of these goods are going to Germany and Austria.

The state department while waiting for the three British notes which were published yesterday, assembled statistics on the export business of the two countries. They are said to show that the exports of England to these countries have increased, along with those of the United States. Great Britain, it is suggested, might as well assume her goods are going to Germany and Austria as to rest satisfied that the increase of American exports indicate such a condition of affairs.

These suggestions in conjunction with the persistent and more determined protests of American shippers and importers who are pressing the administration for relief, will result in a note declining flatly to accept the British position on the blockade controversy and insisting that existing intolerable conditions be remedied.

The reports of Consul General Skinner at London showing that there has been a noticeable increase in re-exports of American cotton from Great Britain to Holland and Scandinavian ports will appear prominently in the new note to England. Eventually, officials say, the entire matter must go to arbitration as England can be expected to stand on her rights under the Bryan arbitration pact.

So far as the new Frye note from Germany is concerned, state department officials declare that no further action is likely in this connection for some time. Meanwhile it is expected that the owners of the sunken ship will have their claims privately settled through the Germany embassy.

STORM DAMAGES IN NEW ENGLAND

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Boston, Aug. 5.—Reports from New England today told a story of heavy damage from storm and rain.

In Boston the storm was a record breaker, second only to that of July 1, and over two inches of rain fell.

There were washouts on the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine R. R., a land slide at Shelburne Falls that buried the tracks ten feet deep, and washouts at Westfield.

In Salem, a man was electrocuted by a live wire broken by the storm. Sailings of Maine and harbor excursion boats were delayed.

FRENCH ADMIT GERMAN SUCCESS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, Aug. 5.—A section of the French trenches on the summit of Linkeopit in the Vosges mountains has been captured by the Germans. Admission of the German gain was made in an official communique issued by the French war office today.

The Germans first bombarded the French positions with the utmost violence and then launched a terrific assault with infantry.

This attack was generally repulsed except at one point where the Germans gained a foothold in the French trenches.

POPE'S CAMPAIGN TO HASTEN PEACE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Rome, Aug. 5.—Pope Benedict XV will launch a great campaign for peace in Europe at the next consistory held at the Vatican. This probably will take place between the end of August and the middle of September.

In addition to the cardinals taking part in the consistory, bishops from the largest cities of Europe will be invited to come here and participate in the great council which will issue a peace appeal to every belligerent nation.

Poles all over the world are flooding the Vatican with letters urging the Pope to intervene in behalf of Poland and to Russia to spare the soil of that unhappy country from further devastation.

SCHOONER IN DISTRESS OFF COAST

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Atlantic Highland, N. J., Aug. 5.—Dashing along the coast at full speed in response to signals flashed from life saving stations on the New Jersey coast the steamer Bermudian overhauled the crippled schooner B. W. Angel 45 miles southeast of Atlantic Highlands.

The schooner was caught in the recent storm off Thimble Shoals. The gale tore her sails to shreds and swept away her life boats. The captain signalled the shore stations and they in turn notified the Bermudian, which reached the schooner after an all night run.

The schooner was leaking when the Bermudian arrived, but the captain stated that he hoped to take his ship into port with the help of revenue cutters. The Bermudian wireless a call for the cutters Itasca and Seneca to New York and stood by pending their arrival.

MRS. O'REILLY GETS WRIT OF MANDAMUS

Judge Hasbrouck Moralizes on Politicians and the Duty of Public Officials and Quotes Andrew Jackson.

Judge Hasbrouck has handed down a decision granting the application of Cecelia B. O'Reilly for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the board of water commissioners to make water connection with her premises at the corner of Broadway and Andrew street upon her payment of $1.40.

The application was made at the Albany special term of the supreme court last Saturday and was adjourned to supreme court chambers in Kingston, where it was argued on Monday by Judge N. Frank O'Reilly, attorney for Mrs. O'Reilly, and by Arthur C. Connelly for the board of water commissioners.

The proceeding was instituted against John Hauck, Dr. George F. Chandler, William A. Roach, William R. Harrison and Palmer Canfield, constituting the board of water commissioners, and John H. Harrison, superintendent of the board.

The facts are fully set forth in Judge Hasbrouck's memorandum, which is as follows:

This is an application by the relator for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the board of water commissioners of the city of Kingston to make water connection with her premises at the corner of Broadway and Andrew street upon her payment of $1.40.

The pertinent facts are that Cecelia B. O'Reilly made an application for connecting her property at Broadway and Andrew street with city water for household purposes and paid a fee of $7, and the main was tapped and a permit issued to her to make connection therewith. A pipe runs from the main so tapped to the curb where a curb cock or shut off is located. Thereafter and in May, 1915, John O'Reilly, in the relator's name, made application for a permit to use the water at the curb cock for "building purposes." No such permit was ever granted by the water department. But the water was turned on without the authority of the department and in violation of section 16 of the rules thereof. The amount required to be paid for such permit was not paid as the rules require in advance. It however, was stated by the department to the applicant or her son and there was neglect to pay as required by section 14 of such rules. Afterwards a demand for immediate payment of ten minutes was made upon said son, relator's agent, and he failed to comply with the demand and the superintendent of the water works proceeded to shut off the water. Some hour or so afterwards relator's agent came forward with the money but the expense in digging to cut off the connection at the curb had meantime been incurred to the amount of fifty cents and this the agent refused to pay although section 5 of the rules provides that "all expenses for introducing water to any premises * * * must be paid by the owner." In making the application for water service relator stated "the laws, ordinances and the rules, etc., are * * * made * * * the contract to govern the use of water on the premises."

It seems to me that the water board in presenting the bill of $1.40 to the property owner after the water at the curb cock had been used on the premises without a permit waived the provision of the rule that payment should be made before a permit was granted. It further seems that whether a demand for the $1.40 had been made before 10 a. m. June 21st, or not, ten minutes was too short a time to give the property owner to pay in. One sympathizes with public officials who are defied and rebuffed but if one will assume the occupation of being a public servant he must expect to take what goes with it in the shape of criticism. It should not influence his conduct. He should remember his function is to serve the public. "The blessings of government like the dew of heaven fall alike upon the just and the unjust," President Andrew Jackson has said. We hold the protection of the law to cling to the party no matter how absent or present politeness may be in the agent of the party.

Motion granted. No costs.

Fred Van Derburgh of Newburgh, who was arrested for causing a disturbance on Fair street the other night, was arraigned this morning in recorder's court and the case adjourned until Friday morning.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON PARDON BOARD

The Albany and New York newspapers contain the following account of the favorable report of the committee on state prisons of the constitutional convention, of which Judge Clearwater is chairman, relative to the creation of a board of pardons:

Judge Clearwater, chairman of the committee on prisons and the prevention and punishment of crime, favorably reported Louis Marshall's proposed amendment creating a state board of pardons, which provides that "the legislature shall create a state board of pardons to consist of three members which shall have the power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons after conviction for all offenses except treason and in cases of impeachment, upon such conditions and with such restrictions and limitations as the board may think proper." They shall be appointed by the governor by and with the consent of the senate.

Judge Clearwater stated that there were four proposed constitutional amendments creating boards of pardon, the one introduced by Mr. Marshall, one introduced by Senator Brackett, one by Mr. Bell and one by Mr. Bernstein. His committee had given many hearings relative to the amendments and had received many letters favoring the creation of such a board. Personally he had communicated with Governor Whitman and with every former governor of the state now living, a majority of whom most decidedly favored the creation of such a board. He said that while the committee had reported Mr. Marshall's amendment, it carefully had considered all the others, and that it had suggested to Messrs. Marshall, Brackett and Bell that they agree upon an amendment reconciling their own divergences, and they had done so. Therefore the amendment approved and favorably reported embodies the most desirable features of the amendments proposed by all three. The committee had not regarded with favor the proposed amendment of Mr. Bernstein which would constitute the governor, lieutenant governor and chief judge of the court of appeals a board of pardons. They were decidedly opposed to the chief judge acting in that capacity, and to include the governor as a member of the board would simply result in shifting to his shoulders the precise burden which it was the purpose of a board of pardons to relieve him of.

When asked whether any of the delegates other than Marshall, Brackett, Bell and Bernstein were in favor of such a board Judge Clearwater said that many of the delegates had written to him strong letters in favor of its creation.

He said that although the committee had considered it, it had made no recommendation as to whether the members of the board should be paid or what length of time they should serve or whether they should be selected from retired judges of the court of appeals or the supreme court, as had been strongly urged. The members of the committee were of the opinion that those questions could be better regulated by the legislature or, if the convention itself thought differently, it could be made an addenda to the Marshall report providing for these phases of the question. He also said there had been much divergence among the members of the committee and among the former governors and persons who had appeared before the committee as to the extent of the power of the board, but the committee had unanimously decided to give the board plenary power without being subject to review.

MARBLETOWN RELIC TO BE PRESERVED

The question of whether to build or not to build a new school house in Marblertown which has been causing considerable speculation among the taxpayers of School District No. 3 in that town has at last been definitely settled and Marblertown will not have a new school house this year, and the present building, which Judge Alton B. Barker visited thirty years ago an stated should be preserved, will be preserved to posterity for another year at least. The state board of education received a complaint from a resident of the district stating that the building should be condemned and a new school built. A short time ago the state department sent an inspector to visit the school. His report to the state board was received by the trustees of the school a few days ago. The state department recommended that in case a new school was not built that some necessary repairs should be made to the present building. On Wednesday afternoon the school trustees met at the school with a carpenter who after looking over the building submitted figures as to the probable cost of making repairs suggested by the state board of education. The building will be repaired at an estimated cost of about $100. The school house, which is of stone, is located on the state road leading from Kingston to Ellenville.

Not "Dry," Thirsty

KANSAS has in force every measure that man can devise to prohibit the use of liquor. It is not only "dry," but a very thirsty state, as statistics will show.

In Shawnee county (very "dry") 95,561 quarts of strong liquor were purchased for individual use during the month of September, 1913. Of this amount 90,062 quarts were received in Topeka, a city of 45,000 and the capital of the state—just half a gallon for each man, woman and child. In Tecumseh, 100 population, the express agent reported, according to law, that 1,627 quarts were received during September, 1913, or 48 gallons to each person during the year.

There'll be no "dryness" hereabout so long as patrons insist on having

The Rev. Mr. Foertner preached in Brooklyn on Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. Maar of Albany was in the village last week looking up items about the Elmendorf family for a genealogy of that family.

Miss May Coons is also spending her vacation in Hurley.

Domine and Mrs. Durfee are taking an automobile trip for a week in Greene county.

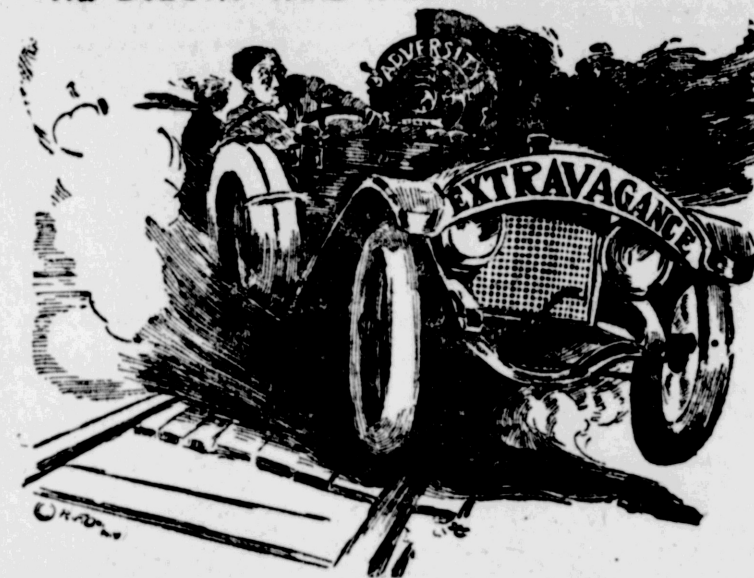

Mrs. Frank Ten Eyck and Wessels and Mrs. Frank Snyder with Winfield took Tuesday to go on the excursion to Bear Mountain. When the dock was reached, word had been passed around that on account of the stormy weather, passengers could remain on the boat and continue on to New York, whether the boat was then bound with an excursion from Highland Falls. In New York the weather was such that the party all remained on board, viewing the city through the mist and rain from the steamer deck.

On Tuesday night, in spite of the rain, a party of nine young people went up to High Falls to attend a dance there. The party was made up of Miss Elmendorf, Miss Miles, Miss von Schleider and Miss Broadhead and the Messrs. Schmidt, Hiller, Baker, Lockwood and Dwyer, the latter coming out from Kingston for the purpose. A roomy Cadillac conveyed the company comfortably and cozily. The road home was missed and a detour had to be made, necessitating a hold up but with no hindrance to the pleasure of the party. One more good time in the calendar for the young people.

Three times was a straw ride planned for and as many times the clerk of the weather disappointed the young people. Neither anxious looks at a threatening sky by daintily dressed maidens nor muttered disgust on the part of gallant swains could induce the said clerk to vouchsafe any weather suitable for a straw ride excepting on those nights when the ride could not take place. We all know the disappointment. There is nothing quite so alluring as a straw ride in summer. The wagon selected is, of course, one of those easy-riding hay racks where the unevenness of the seating accommodations is compensated for by plenty of hay or straw, but necessitating, however, a constant shifting of one's position and requiring plenty of support. The latter especially, when furnished, makes riding a comfort if not a positive pleasure. The opportunity for hilarity is unbounded while we older ones smile as we recall our salad days as the load goes by.

SILLY LIE ABOUT ASHOKAN DAM

story of Plan to Blow it up Suggests to Mayor Canfield an Interesting and Convincing Demonstration That Should be Made.

Concrete construction on the farm of an Ulster county man whose property overlooks the Ashokan dam and reservoir led to the Busy Street Liar starting a story that it was to be used as a base on which to mount guns for the destruction of the dam in case there should be a war with Germany, or that the dam might be destroyed as a protest against the American attitude toward Germany. That the B. S. L.'s story gained credence in certain quarters has been attested by the fact that it was investigated by the staff of a New York daily newspaper, but failure to publish the result of the investigation is taken as an indication that the newspaper traced the story to the B. S. L., but whether he was found in New York, Kingston or the vicinity of the dam is not apparent. In a letter to The New York Board of Water Supply, Mayor Canfield has called attention to this rumor and has suggested that to allay feelings of fear of what might happen should the dam be destroyed, the board of water supply cause a model of the reservoir and dam and the territory between the dam and Kingston to be made in clay, the model to be made to an exact scale showing topographical features, etc., and the part representing the reservoir to be filled with water which could be released suddenly to indicate the exact effect that would result from destruction of the dam.

Mayor Canfield's letter is as follows:

August 4, 1915.

Hon. Charles Strauss, Hon. Charles N. Chadwick, Hon. John F. Galvin, Commissioners of the Board of Water Supply, New York city

Gentlemen:

It has been brought to my personal attention that a rumor that a particular person was making preparations to blow up the main Ashokan dam was given sufficient credence by one of the large New York newspapers to cause them to investigate the matter. As no publication of it has been made by the newspaper, it evidently came to the conclusion, after investigating it, that the rumor was baseless and not well-founded.

I do not share the belief of some residents of Kingston that the destruction of the dam would work any serious injury to our city and our people. I desire to suggest, however, that you have a clay map or model made by your engineers showing the physical features and topography of the immediate locality of the reservoir and of the locality between the reservoir and Kingston. If it should be made according to an exact scale, the part representing the reservoir basin could be filled with water and then run out indicating exactly the effect that would result from the destruction of the dam.

Such a map would make a very interesting and instructive exhibit for display purposes in New York city and elsewhere, and would be quite a valuable addition to the exhibits at the capital.

Trusting that you will deem this of sufficient importance to seriously consider it, I am,

Yours respectfully,
PALMER CANFIELD, JR.

DISCUSS PROGRAM TO PACIFY MEXICO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The fate of Mexico hung in the balance today. While the diplomatic representatives of Latin America and Secretary of State Lansing discussed a program for the restoration of constitutional government in the blood stained republic, the army and navy were getting ready for any eventuality. Gen. Fred Funston was holding all the forces under his command ready to move anywhere along the border to check marauding bands and to enforce any embargo that may be decided on. Another battery of artillery was en route from Fort Sill to El Paso and cavalry regiments at several points had been quietly tipped off that they might get marching orders shortly and to hold themselves in readiness.

Although the conference between Secretary Lansing and South American diplomats was not scheduled to commence until 2:30 the state house department hummed with activity throughout the day. The newly organized division of Mexican affairs had compiled all of the reports received from American consular representatives at every point in Mexico. These confirmed the reports that there was general suffering everywhere from lack of food. Paul Fuller, Sr., investigator extraordinary for President Wilson, was in conference with Secretary Lansing, explaining some of these reports and amplifying others.

In advance of the assembling of the conference, none of the participants would express an opinion as to results. All seemed to favor a final attempt to force the factions to agree on a constitutional provisional president, even if he only held office a day, so that a "man of iron" could be legally pitchforked into power and put in a position to end the reign of anarchy, rapine and murder that has been in progress for the last three years. But it was carefully explained by Secretary Lansing that every angle of the situation was to be freely discussed with a premise that everything would be held sacred, and that it was doubtful whether a complete and definite program could be completed today.

The suggestion that Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the army, be sent to mediate between the factions was generally approved. Whether it will be carried out, however, was doubtful in as much as President Wilson is understood to feel that enough time has been wasted by personal envoys. He is very anxious to get the Mexican situation out of the way before congress reassembles, realizing his political opponents expect to make it a vital issue in anticipation of the coming presidential campaign.

In this connection Republicans are freely criticizing the calling for a concert of the South American powers at this time, in view of the administration's refusal in the past to even consider such a plan. It is charged that this action is taken in an attempt to disarm political criticism of the past Mexican policy and to force support for a new program that could not be secured if it had not been given an international flavor.

There is no longer any doubt here that Villa has been severely defeated in all of his recent military operations. But officials familiar with the situation declared today that now that he is back in the north, he will easily recruit a new army.

Consul Silliman has been ordered to warn Carranza that this government will not consent to his plan of deporting Americans who are obnoxious to him. He must have definitely proven charges against those he interferes with at Vera Cruz and they must be permitted to close up their business affairs without interference. In addition Carranza has been told that he must not try to disarm Americans in Mexico City.

Among a party of people that motored to this place from Ellenville on Saturday were two school teachers, one who has been engaged to teach the school here and the other at Kripplishush.

The farmers are running around with down cast faces talking about their hay and grain that has not yet been harvested on account of so much rain. Virgil Barringer was a lucky one and got his rye in the barn before the long rain began.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Aug. 5.—Summer gayeties seem to be in full swing; one event seems to follow another in quick succession and the time will pass quickly for those who spend a short time here.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Smedes spent some time in Clintondale recently with relatives and had a very pleasant time.

Highland enjoyed a lively week end, and as the month of August is ushered in the people are anticipating many more of a similar nature. It is a very lively place.

School meeting was held Tuesday evening. F. L. Metcalf, W. C. Perkins and D. H. Merritt succeeded themselves as trustees. $15,000 was voted to appropriate for the year's expenses. This seems to be a Vanderbilt, Astor and Rockefeller place. Glad to live among the nabobs. Good schools are needed.

Mrs. Amelia Elmendorf from Clintondale has spent a few days here with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. George Cornell, on White street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Madden were in town recently. They motored from New York and called on friends here.

Our postmaster, Byron Clearwater, recently attended the convention of order of Knights of Pythias at Amsterdam. He reports a fine session and plenty of business and he enjoyed every moment of it, for with the pleasure there is always an educational side to such gatherings.

Dr. Ganse will close his dental offices at New Paltz and this place on August 15 and resume business on September 1; therefore those who desire work done bear in mind these dates.

Mrs. J. J. Donovan and Miss Mary Donovan were business callers in Kingston last week.

Miss Anna Warring has several city boarders for this month.

August eleventh. People who know what constitutes a good supper know full well that the Ladies' Auxiliary Club always serve a nourishing, tempting and appetizing meal.

They seem to have a store house of indispensable recipes from soup to dessert and every one who attends these suppers go home completely satisfied. They never have occasion to say it was a poor meal or too high priced. They believe in giving all their moneys worth. They prefer hearing remarked, "These people give altogether too much for the price." Still, if people are well served, they will go again knowing from past experience they will not be disappointed. So bear in mind the good eat at M. E. Church parlors on Wednesday evening, August 11. Let the business men take advantage of this, as the supper will be served from 5:30 to 8:30. Music during the meal.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller of New York have been guests a few days of Mrs. Almina Freer on Main street.

Miss H. Milligan of Pennsylvania is at present the guest of relatives and friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins of New York city are guests of Mrs. Jennie Mandersheid, sister of Mrs. Tompkins.

State road was opened from the village to Maple avenue and also entrance to Grand street Monday morning, and the people were very jubilant to think they could pass in all of their time for long time for detours. If the weather permits it is hoped that in a few weeks more everyone can drive to the river on the new road and it certainly will be welcome news when the officials say the road is open for use to the public.

Mrs. M. A. Stone and daughter Ethel have had relatives from Saukerties for a visit of a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Traver and Miss Frances Bruyn entertained Mr. and Mrs. Spencer of Flatbush for week end. All spent a pleasant time with friends.

Sunday night brought to us here, one of the heaviest downpours of rain one wished to experience. The thunder was heavy, the lightning vivid, and streets flooded and in some cases water ran in houses.

It was a sweltering muggy heat all day, in fact very warm for several days and at present there seems to be no cool wave in view. The rain came just in time to prevent people from going to church services and we know there must have been considerable damage done through the country by the severe storm.

John Schulte, the grape juice expert has a new business at present, that of pressing juice from grapes. They expect to use this for jellies and also for making a refreshing drink. Current juice punch with other ingredients will be refreshing.

Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Welker of New York city entertained guests from there the past week at their Ethel have had relatives from Saukerties for a visit of a few days.

A committee called "Glad Day" met Wednesday evening to complete plans for celebrating the completion of our new state road, which sounds well. We think that all the aristocracy of this place might form a club that would have the appropriate name of "Glad Day, if the clerk of the weather, who is president of all clubs would let the sun shine upon the sand and bricks that the work might be finished. Still these things are not for us to decide, but the prediction from Washington is clear weather, so we will live in hopes for something better soon, if the weather man sees fit.

Mrs. George Brown has returned home from a vacation spent at Ocean Grove and Ashbury Park. She had a delightful time and now feels ready to take up household duties with vim.

Harry Leonard of Elmira is at present with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Leonard, for a short vacation.

August 20 and 21 will be a great day at Orange Lake for it is to be farmers' and fruit growers' convention and field day. There will be all sorts of sports, for there they have triller coasting, carrousal, swings, beating, bathing, fishing and dancing. There will be prizes given for the most popular Granger, and they will have baseball at that time. They will have a banquet with speakers and everything to attract a crowd. Some from this place are now thinking of going. Orange Lake seems to be quite a summer resort and place for picnic parties. It is a fine auto ride and one can stop at the famous Palatine Hotel, Newburgh, for a fine dinner on the return trip, and it then makes an ideal day's outing. Remember the date at the lake.

Mrs. Harry Schumacher of Brooklyn is at present visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hopper, on Vineyard avenue.

Last Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Fred Decker celebrated at their home on North Road their 15th wedding anniversary. The weather was all that could be wished for. The hour was 8 o'clock, but quite a crowd of people were at the place before that, and as the hour drew near automobiles arrived with their cargo of friends. Over 70 were present. Several from New York and other out of town places. It being exceedingly warm the porch and lawn was in great demand. The bride and groom of 15 years received beautiful gifts of cut glass, china, table linen and furniture, and certainly such articles are the most appropriate gifts imaginable. There was a great variety of exquisite designs. All drank to the health and happiness of the couple in "grape juice punch." After music a bountiful repast was served, and all enjoyed it greatly. It was late when the guests said "Au Revoir," wishing they might live to celebrate their diamond anniversary.

Dr. Freston and wife were in this place Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. B. Howell entertained a few at cards Wednesday afternoon at her home on the banks of the Hudson.

At the suffrage room Friday evening people who wished could hear Miss Luth of New York, who spoke on suffrage, and vocal selections by some out of town talent, which was very good. The piano duet was appreciated, given by Mrs. Staples and Mrs. Blakely. Everyone seems to enjoy their playing. Mrs. Wilke and Rev. Wilke of Milton gave selections that were appreciated greatly.

This seems to be rain coat, rain hat, rubber boot, overshoe and umbrella weather. Do not go out without them. It is not profitable.

The last German note regarding the case of the ship William P. Fry does not add to the strained relations between the two countries. It is true that the German view is out of harmony with our own in many particulars, but that country admits its liability to pay damages. The question has resolved itself into the proper interpretation of the Prussian-American treaty of 1899, which modifies more or less the principles of international law. It strikes us as an odd piece of reasoning to argue that since the treaty does not expressly permit or prohibit the sinking of vessels carrying contraband the commander of the Prince Etzel Friedrich was entitled to act according to his judgment. It would seem to us that the fact that the treaty does authorize the destruction of contraband cargoes creates an inference that ships are not to be sunk. The further statement that Germany will pay damages not as satisfaction for injuries done but in pursuance of "a duty or policy" has an ungracious sound, but it is not worth while to feel resentment over it. It is encouraging to note that Germany offers to arbitrate the dispute. Our Government should accept this proposition. Questions of property rights and the interpretation of treaties entered into in good faith should always be arbitrated. It is only when human lives are destroyed and the guilty party stands its ground defiantly that force has to be resorted to.

Seven chauffeurs who have been driving automobiles carrying United States mail in Brooklyn struck yesterday for some cause or other. A postoffice inspector promptly swore out warrants for their arrest on charges of conspiracy. Employees of private concerns can strike whenever they feel like it, but those who work for Uncle Sam have to be careful or they will land in jail. When railroad workers strike in this country the Government provides means for arbitration, and the result is that they nearly always secure at least a portion of their demands. Not so very long ago there was a railroad strike in France, but the Government made the strikers return to work in a jiffy without any concessions, being able to do this because practically all of the strikers were enlisted soldiers and had to be obeyed or be shot. Yet there are hosts of workmen who adhere to the doctrines of socialism and Government ownership of everything, blindly urging that they be shackled to their jobs like slaves. It is quite wonderful.

These suffragists who think that the vote would "emancipate" woman can find much to interest them in a new law which went into effect in Colorado on July 12 of this year. Under its provisions the wife of a brutal husband must let him beat her for a full year before she can sue him for divorce. If she cannot endure the beating that long and runs away from him, he can immediately sue her for divorce, and get it on the ground of desertion. It must be a queer mind which considers that to be fair play. Women have had the ballot for many years in Colorado, but evidently it has been a damage to them, since no male suffrage State has ever tolerated such a wicked law. When women coarsen themselves by mixing in matters which naturally belong to men they must not be surprised when chivalry dies out.

About 140 more persons have been missing since the Eastland catastrophe than the number of dead and living accounted for. After every great disaster there is a similar story to tell. It appears that there are large numbers of people everywhere who are tired of their surroundings and would welcome any kind of change. They are not desperate enough to commit suicide, and keep on in their rut until unexpectedly they see an opportunity to disappear without being searched for until they have had ample time to hide. It is physically impossible for a hundred or more men to so scatter themselves that a few of them do not meet each other. It seems to us that in such cases the fugitives would naturally stick together as a sort of mutual insurance against detection. In this way little colonies might be formed, and the wanderers might conceivably find themselves in practically the same society which they fled from. There are possibilities here for writers of novels which should not be allowed to go to waste. Truth may be stranger than fiction, but a mixture of the two makes the best reading.

A DIMINUTIVE VILLAGE.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Unique and beautiful in its way is the tiny village of Fonsham, which rests coolly and prettily upon the open countryside in the county of Surrey, England. This truly wonderful miniature hamlet is within the grounds of the Boys' Home of the Philanthropic Society, and it is the pride of the lads who have transformed what was originally an unsightly sand pit into a modern Lilliputian kingdom, lacking nothing but the wee folk to wander through its pretty streets. Indeed, that is not barred, for they may walk about to heart's content, but the tiny houses will not harbor the young builders.

The work was started with the idea of removing an ugly outlook and the deeper purpose of enlisting the boys' interest in practical, instructive work differing only in size from that required on buildings destined for real occupancy. Nothing seems to have been omitted to make the village an ideal residence-spot for tiny, prospective citizens except in point of size—it would need the wanderers in fairyland to occupy the pretty little homes.

The village, complete, consists of 26 houses, each of picturesque individuality, with diminutive fence, little plot of garden space and built to stand the wear and tear of the elements. The rain may beat or the sun may shine upon the roofs of these small dwellings which are made to offer full resistance to whatever may come. They are built upon honor and with as much pains to make them water-proof as if each house was to ring with the happy laughter of a big family.

The station which greets the visitor is a masterpiece, with everything complete, house, cement platforms, seats for the wayfarers, signal box, with levers and signals that really work, engines, freight cars and carriages. It is businesslike to the last letter and a mighty fine tribute to the skill and care of the small builders. The tracks stretch out into a tunnel, which is an interesting touch of realism.

In the central part of the village on a well-kept road stands an ideal little Norman church, whose tower proudly and eloquently speaks of the tireless patience and real ability of the boy-workers and whose interior is perfect. Needless to detail the features which make this little Fonsham church one of the village's star attractions, but they begin with the rows of diminutive pews and end with the sweet chimes that ring out on the peaceful air of the boy-made village.

Near the church is a replica of one of England's many picturesque, ivy-covered ruins, which naturally imparts an eminently aristocratic air and adds its quota of beauty.

A tempting recreation ground offers modern attractions, even to the essential band stand; and the most pretentious house, designed for the squire, is furnished with nicety and due respect to the dignity of the occupant. It stands apart from the rest, in grounds all its own, with cottages for the humbler members of the household.

Still another crowning feature is the pretty stream which runs through the village property, giving opportunity for the erection of an attractive bridge of iron and cement, which is stout enough to stand the weight of boys. The "river" is the home of fish, and in return for their contribution to Fonsham's many attractions they are the special care of some of the boys.

To make it look as though the village stretched indefinitely, one of the boys has erected a massive background painted to deceive the on-looker, and a real windmill completes the picture.

And now something of the society which has inspired this development.

For over a century its work has been the reclaiming of juvenile delinquents, and judging from the spirit displayed, one need not be told that it has won many young offenders permanently from the criminal classes.

The training of the boys is largely agricultural, though a considerable degree of technical instruction is given; and in addition to the practical, there is the ever-growing love of the beautiful, inseparable from the care of the garden end of the project.

There is more than the technique of gardening to be learned while working among the roses, the orderly hedges and pretty green growth; and while the boys are watching their stretch of land blossom into beauty their own ideas are growing purer and their own ideals less and less topping in the old threatening way.

FRANCES SHAFFER.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Funny you never hear Jiggs mention his golf any more." "Not at all. His wife has taken up the game."—Buffalo Express.

Mother: "I'm afraid you are over-eating." Tommy (keeping on): "I ain't afraid. Women get scared at things 'fore men do."—Boston Transcript.

"Is your new cottage to be built in the western way, Mrs. Comeup?" "I suppose so, as the architect wants it in Looney Kansas style."—Baltimore American.

"What sort of an orator is he?" "Merely one of the old-fashioned kind. Simply pounds the rostrum. No flipflops or contortions of any sort."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

"George, you're always happy and smiling; is everybody good to you?" "No, I wouldn't just say that, boss. There's some powerful mean folks in this world, but when I discover 'em I jes' nacherally don't sociate wif 'em."—Detroit Free Press.

Mistaken.

There are probably few humorists in England who can tell more funny stories than W. Pett Ridge. Some time ago at a public meeting he told of a man who one day entered a London police court. The magistrate happened to recognize him as a fellow clubman and specially invited him to take a seat on the bench. The visitor was delighted at the honor done him, and as he sat down beside the magistrate he looked wonderingly round the crowded court. "I see you have a remarkably tough lot of customers to deal with this morning," he said in surprise to the magistrate. "Hush," replied the magistrate, shaking his head to impose silence, "those are the lawyers!"—Buffalo Commercial.

Just Like Home.

"Squabbling and fighting—there's another very frequent cause of divorce," said Prof. L. Watts Ingersoll in an address before the Cleveland Anti-Divorce League. "A man had been haled before a Cleveland magistrate for non-support or some such fault. 'But, let me see,' the justice said, 'aren't you the chap who was married in a cage of wild man-eating tigers and leopards?' 'Yes, your honor, I'm the man,' was the reply. 'Exciting, wasn't it?' said the justice. 'Well, your honor,' said the man, 'it seemed so then. It wouldn't now.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Morning Shower.

Just as a giggling school girl entered a Detroit drug shop and made her way to the soda fountain the white-coated attendant was engaged in vigorously shaking up a "chocolate and egg." Suddenly the glass broke in his hands and the deluge caused the young man to present the appearance of a human eclair. Horrified, the girl at once ceased to giggle, and leaning toward the white-coated one saying, for want of something else: "I am so sorry! Did the glass break?" The attendant gave her a withering look. "Did the glass break?" he repeated. "Oh, no, the glass didn't break! You just happened to drop in on me as I was taking my morning shower!"—Buffalo Commercial.

The Proof.

A clergyman tells an amusing story, as reported in a London paper, of a worthy vicar in a rural parish who had waxed eloquent in the interest of foreign missions one Sunday and was surprised on entering the village shop during the week to be greeted with marked coldness by the old dame who kept it. On asking the cause the good woman produced a half-crown from a drawer and throwing it down before him, said: "I marked that coin and put it on the plate last Sunday, and here it is back in my shop. I knowed well them poor Africans never got the money."—New York Globe.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

August 5, 1895:—Southern Union of C. E. Societies held convention at Clintondale.

Bakery of Christian Schwenk on Foxhall avenue entered by thieves and a quantity of bread and pie and a small sum of money taken.

August 5, 1905:—State Water Commission visited Esopus watershed.

Thomas F. Cusick and Miss Margaret Hallion married at Veteran.

Lasher barn at Kyserville struck by lightning and burned.

Surgical Operation on a Hen.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside, a woman contributor tells about a hen in her flock which ate so many dried peas that her crop became distended, and she was in great pain and danger. The woman goes on as follows to describe the operation she performed:

"Well, I was 'up against it' for I wanted to save that hen, and so far as I could see, an operation was the only thing that would do it."

"Now, I never could bear the idea of using a knife on anything, but I gritted my teeth and hunted up an old razor. I scalded it well, got a pan of clean water, and a little cloth, and went after those peas. Holding the hen back down, between my knees, I made a cut about an inch long in her crop. Then, very carefully, I worked the peas out one by one, using the cloth to wipe away the blood. I kept at it until I had at least one third of them out, then put a few drops of turpentine on the wound, and let poor Biddy go."

"For about a week she stood around, all humped up and I was feeling very doubtful of my skill as a surgeon. But at last she decided that life was worth living and soon began singing."

TUBERCULOSIS SURVEY OF COUNTY

On Tuesday evening of this week, Miss Mary B. Cornell, R. N., tuberculosis investigating nurse for the State Charities Aid Association of this state, arrived in town to begin her work here. Miss Cornell is a graduate of the Pennsylvania hospital, Philadelphia, Penn.; and also of the Pennsylvania training school for social workers. She possesses an unusually robust and vigorous physique and an alert, commanding yet sympathetic personality.

Arriving in town on Tuesday evening, Miss Cornell, in spite of Wednesday's fearful storm, called on Mayor Canfield, our health officer, members of the local committee on the prevention of tuberculosis, the Federation House and representatives of the press. Today, by special request, Miss Cornell will spend at the Tuberculosis Hospital, inspecting the entire plant, its mode of operation and records.

Miss Cornell, who has been an experienced investigating and special tuberculosis nurse for the Pennsylvania state department of health five years, opened the first tuberculosis dispensary in Pennsylvania, at Wilkes-Barre, in July, 1906. This was the beginning of the work, now known as dispensary No. 1, of a chain of 120 dispensaries, operated by the state department of health of Pennsylvania.

She was secured by the State Charities Aid Association of this state, when the best possible nurse having this special training, was wanted for public health nursing and social service work in Cohoes. She was there in charge of a tuberculosis dispensary, established a child welfare station, a baby clinic, a pure milk station, and started two day nurseries, with an average daily attendance of 45 different children and Cohoes is a city no larger than Kingston. All this work Miss Cornell did in two years. Recently for four months, she has been doing the same sort of tuberculosis survey work in Hudson and Columbia county that she will do here in Kingston and Ulster county. Immediately before coming here Miss Cornell made a health survey of the condition of the mines and homes of miners in Luzerne county, Pennsylvania.

Miss Cornell, who is so pre-eminently fitted to take up this work, will at once begin a tuberculosis survey in this city, having been secured by the board of health of this city. She will spend six weeks in investigating the tuberculosis conditions here, for this body, and will make a survey of Ulster county, having secured to do this work, by the Ulster county committee on the prevention of tuberculosis. Miss Cornell will have her office in the State Charities Aid room in the Ulster county building, corner of Crane and John streets. As fast as it is possible to do so, she will become acquainted with the physicians of the city, the clergy and all philanthropic workers. It is hoped that as the result of this survey work and investigating, we will have a much more accurate registration of tuberculosis cases, a greater knowledge of the number of cases and of other health conditions in both city and county. In order to gain the most possible from Miss Cornell's sojourn here, it is hoped that every one in a position to do so will heartily co-operate with Miss Cornell while she is here.

LATTINGTOWN.

Lattingtown, Aug. 5.—The weather during the past week has kept in the "torrid form." The thermometer stood 100 degrees in some places. Currant and raspberry picking is about finished in this neighborhood. The price, like last year, was very low. It is getting as the president of the Columbus Trust Company Bank in Newburgh said recently: "The fruit business is overdone." It is a study for fruit growers to know what is best to get out of fruit when it is in bearing, which takes several years; if it escapes death by scale or some other disease, the price is so low that profit goes down to zero. Politics and monopolies are profitable but how can farmers exchange the knowledge of the soil for either of the other two.

Some fruit growers in this section are taking their currants to Highland to have them ground into wine; but they have to wait until fall or winter to realize on their stock.

The hay crop here is delayed in gathering on account of rain.

Miss Etta Woolley of this place, accompanied by her aunt, Miss Woolley, of Newburgh, have been to Ocean Grove for a week's outing. Painting has been started on M. G. Odell's new residence. Oliver Ansen is doing it.

Robert Ansen of Modena has been here to see his brother, Oliver.

The "Overlook" has had its full complement of New York and other boarders this season. Mrs. Ruger, its owner, keeps open until September.

Superintendent Staples and helpers have finished the road work from H. V. Mackey's to the base of Vail's hill.

L. W. Craft, who was taken seriously ill a short time since, is now out doors attending the arduous duties of a large fruit, hay and grain farm.

Miss Maude Odell has again returned home from New York on account of ill health.

Dr. Moser of Marlborough was in town Tuesday.

Miss Eva Carr of Newburgh and Mrs. Elizabeth Free of Flushing, L. I., have visited at Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Woolley's.

Mr. and Mrs. John Osterhoudt of Kingston have visited a few days at Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Craft's.

DUPLEX DIRECTORY OF KINGSTON CITY

Representatives of the Price & Lee Company, publishers of the Kingston City Directory, are in town arranging to begin the canvass for the new city directory for 1915-16, and in a few days the canvassers will begin gathering the information in the usual way.

There is to be a notable improvement in the directory this year and a feature never before given in a directory of this city is to be included, the work being done in duplex form, a street directory of householders and business places being added. The usual city directory, in alphabetical order, will be made up and corrected to date of going to press and on tinted paper so that it may be easily distinguished from the body of the book, will be a complete list of houses, classified by street and number, with the name of the occupant given. This will make it possible to ascertain without asking questions who occupies any house in the city the street and number of which you know. It will be especially useful to business men who desire to compile a mailing list of heads of families in the entire city or in any street or locality selected.

METTACAHONTS.

Mettacahonts, Aug. 5.—The lawn social which was given on James H. Enderly's lawn at Whitfield by the Girls' Club of this place and Whitfield was voted a success by everyone. $25.77 were taken in of which $18.50 was clear of all expense. A great plenty of ice cream and cake were for sale. A large crowd was in attendance, some being present from Lake Mohonk, Kerhonkson, Lyonsville, and Accord with a large attendance from this place and Whitfield.

Much credit is due the girls for the way they worked all evening for the interest of the club. The club is on a sound business basis and the money for the hospital room a certainty. The girls of the club wish to cordially thank through the columns of The Freeman all those who so willingly assisted them in making the party a success. Their thanks are especially tendered to Mr. and Mrs. James H. Enderly, where the party was held and to Mr. Enderly for kindly building the bar and table. ISOLATED SAMOYEDS.

Russian Subjects Who Haven't Heard of the War.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—"Beyond the northern limits of the scrub pine and shaggy stunted fir, there is a Russian people, the Samoyeds, who, in all likelihood, have not learned that the Russian War is ended, and who have no idea of the difficulties that the Tsar, the Little Father who adopted them, is facing in a present world-war. So vast is the Muscovite realm that rumors of the greatest war in history cannot have penetrated to its outskirts, to the wastes fringing the Arctic, to the mountain tangles just beyond Mongolia, or to the evergreen forests of Kamchatka. Russia harbors many strange peoples and all of the languages of the northern hemisphere within her boundaries, and it will be long before the news of the present war, told in 'friend pidgin,' will arrest the attention of her subject tribes." So begins a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society, which tells about the fragments of a race crowded into the bleak north by the Tartars, a race which lost its foothold in the more fruitful, generous south, and which now is paying the penalty of being pushed to the wall by forgetting most of its former civilization and by dying out. Under the protection of the Tsar, these people are assured of a peaceful oblivion behind the white veil of the north. The bulletin continues:

"The Samoyeds are a Mongolian people, who live in the wide sweep of tundra country that reaches from the mouth of the White Sea across Europe, in places a belt more than 500 miles in depth, from the Arctic Sea to the northern line where the forests vanish. They are reindeer herders, fishermen and hunters of seal. It is through their surpluses in these three things that they come into contact with the Russian trader, who visits them in their far northern centers, or whom they make long journeys to visit to the city of Archangel. Reindeer skins, seal skins, furs, fish and reindeer meat are sold by the Samoyeds to their Russian neighbors, for the Russian official and the Russian trader is established in widely scattered outposts here in the north country, isolated from the world, many hundreds of miles from railroads, telephones and telegraphs, and beyond the reach of the press.

"The Yurak Samoyeds, that branch which dwells in European Russia, it is estimated, counts in all only about 6,000. Of these, 5,000 live in the European tundra. In build they are short and stocky, with faces much more flattened than the Finns, with thick lips, black hair, flat noses, and dark complexions. They are said to be a fearless and warlike people, though it is generations since they have given any evidence of aggressive temperament. In their dealings with the stranger, they are described as mild and scrupulously honest.

"Mighty rivers, like the Pechora, drain through their lands into the Arctic Sea. In the brief summer and spring times, these streams, thawing much sooner in their southern sources, sweep in turbulent floods over the flat lands bordering their lower reaches. Of roads through the tundra, there are almost none, and such as exist are possible only for the hardy reindeer and the all-enduring little horses of the north. Small villages and human habitations are hundreds of miles apart, and then often are merely post stages, which the Russian government has established, for the transportation of mails and rare passengers beyond the confines of civilization to such far places as the village Aschimo.

"The Samoyeds are a poor people, mostly, and very thrifty. They eke out a precarious existence in their inhospitable country, and have learned through necessity to eat anything which grows there. They eat even the wolves that menace the safety of their reindeer and of themselves upon their seal and fur hunting trips. Besides meat and fish, the Samoyeds have a plain, hard, black bread as staple, and another bread which is baked of putrid fish and rye meal."

Education Outside of Schools.

The educational significance of other than school agencies is emphasized in a current survey of educational progress just issued by the U. S. Bureau of Education. "Libraries, museums, and art galleries are unlocking their treasures, and seeking to establish a very direct relation to organized school work," declares W. Carson Ryan, Jr., editor of the bureau. Numerous other agencies and organizations are doing a work whose direct educational influence must in the aggregate be enormous. There are the 300 educational associations, many of them, like the National Education Association and its branches, doing direct work in the professional education of teachers and school superintendents; others, like the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, carrying on a propaganda of education among the general public; and still others, like the Public Education Associations of New York and Philadelphia, investigating city conditions and stimulating an interest in education among the people of the local community. Organizations like the Russell Sage Foundation, the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, the Carnegie Foundation, and the General Educational Board, have brought into the work of education the welcome influence of an impersonal, scientific judgment. No record of the year in education would be complete that did not pay tribute to the work these organizations and others of the kind are doing.

"Colleges, universities and normal schools are going far beyond their own walls in carrying education to the local communities. Nearly half the colleges in the United States did extension work last year. The Federal Government itself is realizing, as never before, the desirability of a wide distribution of the scientific information it has collected at large expense of time and money and many of the bulletins and circulars issued by the government are now affecting directly the everyday procedure of education. The Boys' and Girls' Club work in the department of agriculture and the circular letter service of the bureau of education illustrate two different types of the information service of the Federal Government, both of recent development. In the two years ending June 30, 1914, the bureau of education issued 112 numbers of its bulletin, representing about a million separate copies and covering nearly every phase of educational endeavor for the direct use of school officials.

"A host of other organizations making no claim to a place in the formal school system are nevertheless doing active work of a directly educational nature. The Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Camp Fire Girls, women's clubs, parent-teachers associations, musical societies, art centers; these are doing a work whose educational importance is only beginning to be apprehended. The influence of the fraternal organizations is directly educational. The whole vast field of religious instruction in churches and Sunday schools represents an educational problem that is seldom viewed as such because of the larger spiritual issues that are felt to be involved, and because of the traditional separation of church and state in America. Chautauques, farmers' institutes, lecture courses, the Grange, Young Men's Christian Association and Young Women's Christian Association, social settlements, summer camps, the periodical and newspaper press—these are as truly educational agencies as the schools."

Why the Farmer Likes the West.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside a farmer tells as follows why the west suits him: "It is a pleasure for me to go out to my fields on the hot scorching midsummer day and, with an irrigation shovel over my shoulder, play the rain god. By a turn of the wrist I can send the water coursing down through the grain, giving it the moisture needed to produce a gigantic yield. Later in the day, to stand with the field between me and the slanting rays of the sun and watch the glistening water trickling along a hundred rows through the fields is a sight to make the heart rejoice. The price of irrigated land sometimes appeals to the easterner, and yet he should expect high values. The water which is brought down from the snow banks of the high mountain peaks costs money. It costs money to build the miles of canals, the tunnels, the flumes, the reservoirs and dams, and to keep them in repair. And yet the sure crops, the big yields, and the security of irrigation farming makes possible the payment of high acre prices. The amount of irrigation water is limited; the demand for irrigated land is great and no one can tell what the maximum price will be when people realize generally what irrigation farming means."

FROST VALLEY.

Frost Valley, Aug. 5.—A. D. Murray of Clarville began his hay on his farm in this place on Monday. Gilbert Van made a business trip to Clarville on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dietz are spending a few days in Hurley with Mr. Dietz's mother, Mrs. Misner. John Van drove to Clarville on Saturday. Charles Ertz is cutting the hay on Mrs. Misner's farm. Mrs. Frank Castle and daughter, Mary Frances of Pine Hill, are spending a few days in this place.

MAYOR CANFIELD WANTS TO KNOW

Asks Some Timely Questions About the Proposed Constitutional Amendment Regarding the Collection of School Taxes.

Mayor Canfield has written a letter to Judge Clearwater, vice-chairman of the Committee on Education of the Constitutional Convention, inquiring whether an amendment to the constitution reported by the committee in regard to school taxes will not have an effect other than the effect which is contemplated.

Mayor Canfield's letter to Judge Clearwater is as follows:

Office of the Mayor
Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 4, 1915.
Hon. A. T. Clearwater,
Vice-Chairman Committee on Education,
Albany, N. Y.

Dear Judge:—
I have attempted to analyze the amendment to the constitution reported by the Committee on Education and two possible objections present themselves to me. The part thereof which raises the question points in my mind is as follows: "Such funds, except those apportioned by the state, shall be raised by taxation in each city in the same manner as the general city taxes, but shall be levied and the amounts extended on the roll as a separate school tax."

The first question is—will the words, "in the same manner as the general city taxes" operate to make unconstitutional and override the present provision in subdivision 5 of Section 4 of the Tax Law to the effect that pension purchased property shall be taxable for local school purposes.

I take it that by providing that school funds shall be raised by taxation in the same manner as general city taxes that it is meant that the same method of procedure and the same mode of assessment and taxation shall be followed.

The method and mode of raising taxes for general city purposes is (1) Ascertaining facts for assessment, (2) Preparation of assessment-roll, (3) Notice of completion of assessment-roll, (4) Hearing of complaints, (5) Correction and verification of tax-roll, (6) Filing of roll and notice thereof, (7) Levy of tax.

In preparing the assessment-roll for the levying of general city taxes it is the duty of the assessor to mark pension purchased property exempt. If the same method and mode of assessment shall be followed as to school assessment such property would likewise be marked exempt from taxation for school purposes. If this reasoning is correct pension purchased property would be made exempt from taxation for school purposes as well as for general city purposes.

The second question is whether by providing that school funds be raised in the same manner as the general city taxes and extended as a separate school tax, a separate school tax at a different time from the general tax is prohibited. In many cities, as will Kingston beginning next year, the school tax is levied in the summer months while the other general taxes are levied in the winter months.

I am simply pointing out what may be possible objections to the proposed amendment as drafted for your attention and consideration.

Respectfully,
PALMER CANFIELD, JR.,

What Makes Land Valuable.

Following is an extract from an editorial in the current issue of Farm and Fireside:

"Reduced to its lowest terms, property, whether real or personal, gold or silver, prairie land or skyscraper, derives its value from what man's labor has put into it or what it can take out of it."

"So said Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the United States Geological Survey at the University of Illinois recently."

"Doctor Smith's geology is fortunately much more accurate than his political economy. The quoted statement is one the error in which any freshman in economics ought to be able to demonstrate."

"The value of land does not come from any labor expended upon it at all, though the value of the improvements does. A quarter section of prairie land, or a quarter block in a city available for the erection of a skyscraper, depends, as to selling value, on the presence of the community. The owner of farm land in Illinois or of a lot in Chicago may have been asleep, in an insane asylum, or abroad for twenty-five years, doing nothing on the land, but the value has been running up all the same."

Resolutions.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Kingston Savings Bank held at its banking rooms on the 3rd day of August, 1915, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

In the death of Senator John J. Linson which occurred on the 2nd day of August, 1915, this institution has lost one of its most capable, honest and valued members. Having served as a trustee for the past 16 years and as its attorney for the past 16 years, in both of which capacities he devoted his time and talents to the safeguarding of its interests and the interest of those dealing with it. He was a man endowed with a wonderful mind which was never put to use except in the cause of right and justice. As a statesman, lawyer and upright citizen he had few equals and no superiors. No man can truthfully say that John J. Linson ever committed a dishonest or dishonest act in his life, and he leaves behind him a record such as all young men should emulate. In his death not only this institution, but the state, county and city have lost a most valued member.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That this institution record his death with great sorrow, and that we extend to his family our deepest sympathy and that this minute be placed in full upon the records of our institution and a copy mailed to his family and published in each of the papers of our city.—Advertisement.

A Scientific Wooing

Curiosity, Sympathy and Imagination Were the Basic Principles.

By F. A. MITCHEL

Dr. Shotwell was about to leave his consulting room at the close of his morning office hours when a man entered whose appearance at once arrested his attention. There is no word to describe his appearance except queer. He was neither homely nor good looking, neither well nor poorly dressed. Indeed, there was nothing for or against his personal appearance. He was simply queer. Nevertheless intellect was expressed in his face. He might have been a poet; he might have been a Socialist; he might have been a lightning calculator escaped from a dime museum.

The doctor looked at him with an expression intended to ask what he could do for him. The patient thrust his hand in his pocket and pulled out a roll of bills, from which he selected five tens and, handing them to the doctor, said:

"There's nothing the matter with me, doctor. I'm in perfect health. I desire to consult you as to a matter of importance to me, and since I know your time is valuable I offer payment in advance. For these bills I desire half an hour's consultation with you or such part of that time as may be necessary to my purpose."

The doctor gave a tacit consent, asked his visitor to be seated, took a chair himself, and the other proceeded:

"I desire to win the love of a certain woman who has not manifested the slightest interest in me. I am convinced that love between the sexes may be produced by exciting the imagination. Nine-tenths of our marriages in America are for what is called love, but what I call an abnormal temporary development of the imaginative faculty. In proof of this I would cite the different conditions of a couple about to be married from those of a couple that have been married. During the courtship, while they are feeding on what I call imaginary love food, they are in an ecstatic suspense. Marriage ends that suspense and brings reality. After that their relations are dependent upon a number of conditions, the chief of which, to state it concisely, is whether they are naturally fitted or unfitted to give each other aid and comfort."

The doctor sat attentive to this dissertation on love, an incipient smile gathering on his lips as his visitor proceeded. When this point had been reached and the speaker added, "Do you follow me?" the doctor replied: "I do. Proceed." Whereupon the man continued:

"My name is Norman Bloodgood. I wish to marry a young woman named Catherine Anderson. The reason why I wish to marry her is because I desire to marry some one, and I have settled upon her. There is no more reason why she should marry me than any other man. She has met me once and treated me with indifference."

"Beg pardon," interrupted the medical man, "did she not evince at least curiosity?"

"Now I remember," responded the client, "there was a look on her face at seeing me indicating surprise or amusement or something of the kind, but nothing indicating admiration or in any way being drawn toward me. But why do you ask this?"

"I take it for granted from what you have told me that you wish me to suggest some scientific method of exciting an interest in you, which, being fanned by the imagination, may result in love."

"Exactly."

"Very well. I would recommend attempting to effect a lodgment through curiosity, the only constituent part of your makeup that seems to have taken any hold upon the young lady. Beginning with this as a foundation we may build upon it with other excitants of the feelings commonly used by wooers. Sympathy may be excited by real or feigned misfortune. Flattery when undetected as such is a stimulant. Sentiment excited by gifts, principally flowers, is an excellent means of producing love. Then when a substructure has thus been laid a touch of hands, a kiss!"

"I am aware of these methods, common to all mankind," interrupted the visitor. "What I desire to learn from you is how to handle that very difficult matter of making a beginning. Subsequent devices may or may not serve. What I am looking for is something that must produce a scientific result, just as the mingling of one part of oxygen with two parts of hydrogen will produce water."

"While I am willing to admit," replied the doctor, "that there may be some means of producing such an effect, I doubt if we have attained to a knowledge of it. Nevertheless I confess that the bent of my mind is toward investigation, and I will be interested in assisting you to win the love of the lady of your choice by scientific means, but"—handing his visitor the offered fee—"I could not consent to take money for what is beyond the pale of my profession."

The matter of the fee having been settled by the client accepting its return, the doctor proceeded: "Since you consider the imagination the excitant of love I am willing to work with you on this line. But we must in your case begin with curiosity, since you say that is the only hold you have upon Miss Anderson's attention. Now, suppose you make a mystery concerning yourself. Hint at some great grief in your life, some injustice done you. I would not scruple to try to impose upon the lady a sin you have committed, of which you are repentant."

"But, doctor, the time must come when it will become necessary to make plain this mystery."

"Not necessarily, but if it does you may gain a strong point by confessing some noble act which your tender conscience has exaggerated into a crime."

"Shake, doctor!" said the visitor, grasping the other's hand. "That suggestion is worth more than any prescription you have ever written."

"That isn't saying much," muttered the man of medicine to himself.

"I must leave you now," he said to his client, looking at his watch, "to make my morning round of visits. Suppose you start on the lines I have suggested, and if you find that you have produced results let me know. I advise you, having made your beginning on a basis of curiosity, to add a teaspoonful—I mean a quantum—of sympathy, leaving the imagination to come in third, after which resort to the ordinary devices pertaining to courtship."

"Thank you, doctor," said the visitor, rising and grasping the doctor's hand warmly, and with the same serious look on his face that he had worn through the interview he went his way.

Within a fortnight the doctor received a letter from his client in which he laid down his great grief and a sin that he had committed. He had killed a man for revenge, but had been driven to the act through a great wrong done him. He was suffering no end of mental torture. Miss Anderson's sympathy had been aroused, and she was intent upon knowing what had spurred him to kill a fellow being. This was as far as he had gone. He had noted the rise of considerable interest in him on the part of the lady. In due time he would reveal that his father and mother, who had lived in the wild west, had been murdered by Indians. He had not only killed all the Indians concerned in the massacre, but he had barbarously taken their scalps, acts for which he could never forgive himself.

A second letter came in which Mr. Bloodgood spoke of the murder of his parents and his confession of his revenge. Miss Anderson had been much grieved for him and had been disappointed because he had not tortured the Indians before killing them. She had expressed wonder that he should have allowed the killing of a few savages who had murdered his dear father and mother to trouble his conscience. Surely he must have great nobility of soul to consider such an act a sin.

And here, as these two scientists, Dr. Shotwell and Mr. Bloodgood, had intended, the imagination began to work. Miss Bloodgood pictured the settlers' cabin, the trees of the virgin forest waving over it, the old man sitting before the fireplace at evening smoking his pipe and the old woman clearing the supper table; then the figures of the red men far in the evening twilight galloping toward the cabin. The massacre was too horrible for the dreamer to dwell upon, but she pictured the son's return to find his parents weltering in their blood.

And now the queerest of Norman Bloodgood had given place to a heroic-looking man bending over his parents' bodies, then looking up to heaven and swearing to avenge their death. She saw him mount a mettlesome steed and, plunging his spurs into the horse's flanks, speed away into the depths of the forest. She heard the crack of his rifle as he brought down the first savage. She saw him plunge a tomahawk into the next redskin's skull. She fancied him dealing death to a dozen Indians and wished there were more.

Then her hero rode off, his vengeance wreaked, appalled at the gory being the massacre of his beloved parents had made him. Years of regret followed. What a noble spirit to grieve over the punishment of bloodthirsty savages!

One day Mr. Bloodgood called at Dr. Shotwell's office and reported the story he had told, the object of the experiment they were interested in. He knew nothing of his success in exciting Miss Anderson's imagination or her sympathy. He simply reported what he had done. The doctor listened to his report and, confident of the effect he had produced, suggested that he try a light application of hand pressure; if this was not repelled, an arm stolen around the waist, a touch of the lips.

Not long after this Bloodgood reported that in one of his fits of remorse he had dropped his head upon Miss Anderson's shoulder. She had not withdrawn from the contact. Encouraged, he had folded her in his arms. Still not being repelled, he had kissed her. Then one day he called at the doctor's office to be congratulated upon his engagement.

These two scientists discussed the matter in the same vein as when they were laying out their plan of attacking Miss Anderson's heart by scientific methods as if they had it in a test tube. Mr. Bloodgood did not appear to consider that there was any difference in the two processes. As for the doctor, he was a reticent man and never told even his best friend how much of the conquest was due to cause and effect and how much to nature.

After Mr. Bloodgood's marriage Dr. Shotwell met him and asked him if he had preserved the secret of his deception.

"Oh, I confessed that at the time our first child was born," replied Bloodgood, "but she was too much interested in the baby to consider the matter of any importance."

The average daily field ration of the United States army is made up as follows: Bacon, 12 ounces or fresh meat, 20 ounces; bread, 18 ounces; beans, 24 ounces; potatoes, 20 ounces; prunes or preserves, 1.28 ounces; coffee, 1.12 ounces; sugar, 3.2 ounces; evaporated milk, 5 ounces; vinegar, .16 gill salt, .04 ounce; pepper (black), .04 ounce; lard, .04 ounce; butter, .5 ounce. Of this ration just a portion is carried individually by the soldier; the rest, such as butter, lard, pepper, sirup, etc., are given in bulk to the companies and then distributed to the men at meal-time.—Argonaut.

ONEONTA ELOPERS
SENT BACK HOME

This morning an eloping young couple from Oneonta were picked up at the West Shore station by the local police and will be sent back to Oneonta. Word of the elopement was received at police headquarters on Wednesday evening with the request from Oneonta that the young couple be sent home. The girl, Edna Whitaker, is 16 years of age, and the boy, Charles F. Saxton, is 21 years old. The request to apprehend the couple came from the girl's father.

SOCIETY NOTES.

A very sociable evening was spent at the home of Miss Ruth Hendrickson, 135 Ten Brock avenue, on Tuesday. Those present were Miss Mary Hallinan, Mrs. Brasted of New York city, Miss Vera Hendrickson, Joseph Hallinan, Miss Ruth Hendrickson and H. Wolfe also of New York city. Refreshments were served and they all departed at a late hour.

A card party was given Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. George Kirchner in honor of her son, Harry, and niece, Miss Marian Gaunt, of Philadelphia, who left town today for New York city to visit relatives. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Gaunt and Miss Mabel Raichle. Martin Daley sang several solos which were greatly enjoyed. At a late hour refreshments were served. Among those present were the Misses Flossie Brown, Mabel Raichle and Nina Parcell and Clarence Rowland, William Prentice and Martin Daley.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Wachmeyer celebrated their sixty-fourth wedding anniversary quietly today at their home, 11 Home street. Mr. Wachmeyer is 86 years of age and his wife is 84 years old. Mr. Wachmeyer is probably the oldest furniture dealer today along the Hudson river valley. He has conducted the business at his store on the Strand for the past thirty-two years and before that was in business on Abel street for about the same number of years. Five children are living, three sons, George, Leonard and Henry, and two daughters, Miss Augusta and Elizabeth, wife of William Hiltbrand. Considering their advanced age Mr. and Mrs. Wachmeyer are enjoying comparatively good health and their host of friends will be glad to learn of their anniversary today.

Acker-Satterlee. Miss Kathryn Satterlee, formerly of Branch, Ulster county, N. Y., and William Acker of North Rose, Wayne county, N. Y., were married at the residence of the M. E. Church on Tuesday by the Rev. Howard E. Springer, pastor of the church. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Satterlee, a brother and sister-in-law of the bride. After a short honeymoon trip they will reside at North Rose.

Galloway-Smith. Elmer Galloway, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Galloway of Broadhead street, Ellenville, was married in Middletown at the rectory of Grace Episcopal Church Sunday afternoon to Miss Ethel M. Smith of that city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. N. Jones. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oakley of Ellenville. After the ceremony the young couple in company with their guests repaired to the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emma J. Smith, where a wedding dinner was served. They were taken by automobile to the Wickhamore O. & W. station where they left by train on a wedding trip. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Galloway will reside at 62 Linden avenue, Middletown.

The Nirvana Aground.

The other day the large steam yacht Nirvana ran aground at Ulster Landing and word was sent to the Cornell Steamboat Company, who sent a tug to the scene but efforts to pull the yacht off the mud were unsuccessful. Today the Chaplin Wrecking Company of New York city were at work at the scene. The yacht is 195 feet long and is a handsome vessel. Its home port is Providence, R. I., but the owner is not known.

This afternoon and also on Friday afternoon Mrs. Mary E. T. Chapin of Boston, a world-famous teacher and lecturer, will be heard in addresses which have electrified the audiences of our larger cities as well as those of the great centers of learning in Europe. It is a rare treat to meet a woman who has been actively connected with and consulted by Lady Paget and her associates in the great work of relief which absorbs the finest of England's women today; the only American woman chosen to be a member of the board of the Belgian Relief Committee of the city of London, a woman who was a daily visitor for months to the sufferers in the Alexandria hospital in London; a woman who is the valued, personal friend of the world's foremost scientists, clergyman and inventors, and a wonderful privilege to hear the words of real uplift and helpfulness that fall from her lips. A more magnetic and powerful speaker could not have been secured to deliver the first week's message.

Mrs. Chapin returns to New York after the lecture of Friday afternoon and closes her season there with her regular meeting in the Gilt ballroom of the Biltmore Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Fred J. Goetz of Schenectady, with her magnificent voice and charming personality has delighted most appreciative audiences during the week. She will remain with us until Monday.

To all the lectures and entertainments Dr. Sahler's Kingston friends are most cordially welcome. BLOOMINGTON. Bloomington, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Floyd Childster of New Brunswick, N. J., who is spending

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Aug. 5.—Some of the big league clubs who are in a hitting slump might imitate the experiment made with wonderful results a few years ago by a minor league manager.

Alexander Pearson is the manager under discussion. He was handling the Uniontown, (Pa.) team and the team was doing everything but winning ball games. Pearson shifted his batting order a half dozen times in the hope that the change would lift the team out of a batting slump. But to no avail.

Whereupon, Pearson put the names of all his players on a slip of paper and deposited them in a hat. Then he withdrew them for batting position, the first name withdrawn to be the lead off batsman, the second name to bat second and so on. The club, with its jumbled lineup, won the game that day and followed it with 17 more victories, all in a row.

Isn't Frank Baker exerting himself or have they some real pitchers in the Delaware County League where the "Home Run King" is rusticated at present? That's a big question—and a vital one.

Baker during his long career with the Athletics faced some of the best pitching in the world—faced it and beat it to a frazzle. He showed no weakness. He was able to hit practically every kind of ball that was served up to him. Year after year he slugged far above the .300 mark.

And now, this same Baker, playing in this bushiest of bush leagues, is hitting for an average around .235. What do you make of it, Sherlock?

Here, in brief, is the history of the Federal League case:

January 1, 1914.—Indicted by the original baseball grand jury on the charge of attempting to murder the little monopoly that was controlled by the national commission.

March 1, 1914.—Tried and found guilty by Ban Johnson, John Tener, Garry Herrmann and the rest of the jury.

April 13, 1914.—Sentenced to die on July 4th by Judge and Jurymen Ban Johnson.

July 4, 1914.—Granted a stay of execution until Labor Day.

Labor Day, 1914.—Granted another stay.

October 5, 1914.—Federal League claims trial was unjust and appeals for new trial at hands of general public.

April 10, 1915.—New trial granted.

May 1, 1915.—Again found guilty by organized baseball jury and sentenced to death July 4, 1915.

July 4, 1915.—Sentence commuted to life imprisonment.

August 1, 1915.—Application made for pardon.

August 5, 1915.—Application being considered.

One fan is of the opinion that "The Matter With Baseball" is that the dear, old public has been baseball to death. He thinks that because baseball has become an every day occurrence, and that it doesn't furnish the lure that it did before baseball became a part of nearly every sport lover's daily diet.

"Baseball," says the fan, "should be more on the circus order. Instead of playing games every day only about three games should be staged each week. That would give the fans a chance to catch up with themselves. The club owners should advertise the games extensively—on billboards. They should pass out hand bills and in this way, whenever a game is played it would be a sort of fete-day for the town in which it is staged.

Undoubtedly, a large flock of magnates will view this opinion with horror. The idea of playing only three games a week when the law permits from six to fourteen. And advertising via the billboard and hand bill route! Ye Gods and picked devil fish! Doesn't the fan know that such a procedure would cost the owners money?

Good Advice.

In Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published at Springfield, Ohio, an Indiana reader who says he has small capital writes to the question department that he is hesitating between taking a homestead in western Canada and buying some Texas school land at $1.50 to $5.00 per acre, on very easy terms. He asks for advice, and the editor answers:

"It might be wiser to stay in Indiana than to go to either place. There are no good homesteads left in the United States, and lands selling at from $1.50 to $5.00 per acre must have something the matter with them. All things considered, they are probably no cheaper than Indiana land at its selling price. If cheap lands are not paid for in money they must be paid for in labor or hardship if they are productive lands. The thing to decide is, 'Am I willing to pay the price in hardship, isolation and the like?' This is a question which every man must decide."

YANKEES GET NEW MASCOT.

New York, Aug. 5.—The Jinx that has followed the Yankees of late will surely be broken. The Yanks have cast off their old mascot and taken unto themselves a new one. Here is the new luck bringer, Dominick Margo by name, but called "Young Chief Myers" by the brigade under "Will Bill" Donovan. Dominick insists that he is a sure luck bringer and is a daily rooster for the Yanks. He has as a constant companion the dog, shown in the picture, which has not yet been named by the players.
